Congratulations to Liberty

The Times Virginian joins the people in this section in offering congratulations to Liberty Baptist on the occasion of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the church.

Liberty is one of the most staid wart and influencial churches of the denomittation in Virginia. It is perhaps the strongest church in the Appomattox Baptist Association. Its cumulative record stamps it as a great Christian influence and power.

During the course of the week's program, the history of the church, from its branching from Rocks just one hundred years ago, to the cataloging of its various church organizations. That will be enlightening and interesting.

However, in this column, it is our desire to express the appreciation of the people of Appomattox to the individuals and committees who have for months in advance planned the Centennial events, and especially the pastor, Rev. W. M. Thompson, who has once again proved himself a splendid leader and ideal organizer.

The Centennial will be a big success, hundreds of visitors will attend, a great heritage will be honored, and, we thank the leaders who are making all this possible.

Why Not Appomattox?

Speaking at a committee meeting here last Friday, Congressman P. H. Drewry stated that the total business at Gettysburg reached a total of FIVE MILLION dollars a year.

Shouldn't that figure [Appomattox people to thinking? Already tourists spend large sums here each year. But the surface hasn't been even scratched.

Adaptability is necessary in order to survive in a changing world.

Do you look on your business as a big new adventure each day?

Weather is like the depression. Each is called the worst on record.

CULINARY KINKS

WITH mustard, pickles, chow-chow, capers, anchovy paste, chutney and such condiments as most housewives either put up or purchase, there is a great variety to vary the sameness in salads and salad dressings. These same condiments may be frequently used for fillings for sandwiches or for sauces when these interesting foods are required.

When there is crisp fresh lettuce for the base of a salad one need not despair. Sprinkle with rolled, freshly roasted peanuts and serve with a bit of shredded onion and french dressing.

Use tender leaves of endive sprinkled with chopped stuffed olives and dressed with tarragon vinegar in the french dressing.

Try ripe even-sized tomatoes stuffed with chopped cabbage to which a slice or two of pineapple finely chopped is added. Mix with a good boiled dressing.

Nowadays with flour prepared especially for cake making, one is insured against coarse grained and heavy cake, if rules are followed.

Folding in the stiffly beaten egg is another important step, not to destroy the lightness by breaking down the air cells in the egg.

For the hostess who wishes to serve pies as individual ones, there could be nothing more attractive than the pumpkin, the cranberry or the custard.

Fruit should always be dredged with flour to keep it from sinking in the batter. Milk and flour added alternately with much beating after each addition makes a fine texture in the cake.

Measure time for baking into quarters, in the first quarter the cake should begin to rise, in the second quarter, finish rising and begin to brown, the third quarter should finish browning and begin to shrink from the pan, and the last quarter finish baking. Test before taking from the oven, then cool before frosting.

LIBERTY SONG

By THAYER WALDO

THE man in the officer's chair lit a fresh cigar and angrily flung the match aside.

"Cockeyed, idiotic business!" he snarled.

"A whole production tied up while we sit here waiting for some wop bum to be dragged in off the streets. It's the damnedest thing I ever heard of!"

Stuart Booth eyed him contemptuously and said nothing.

Fiberg made a gesture of conciliation.

"Now listen, Nick," he begged; "be reasonable a little, couldn't you? Ain't the only chance we got worth anyhow a try?"

"Yes; I should think, Hormell," Booth put in coldly, "that after all the fuming you've done over this part, you might see how my suggestion works out before you start crabbing."

The director twisted swiftly around in the chair to face him, snapping:

"Look here, stuart; I never agreed to this wild notion of yours, and I won't perfect to now. Here we have a scene that needs an operatic star, and you talk 'em into going after a dago banana peddler you've heard yodeling behind his pushcart. If I'm expected to enthuse over that—well, it's a laugh, that's all."

"All right; now we'll just add the rest of it: you want an Italian tenor, yet you can't afford anyone big for even a small role. There's no foreign language singer available on the lot, so where are you? Stuck. And then when I offer the one idea that may solve your problem, you beef!"

"Well," Hormell grumbled, "it simply doesn't sound sensible. If he was going into a chorus. . . . But the man's got to do a solo, and—"

"Hey, look!" Fiberg had turned toward the sound stage entrance.

"Is that him?"

The others swung around.

Just inside the door stood a little round man in baggy trousers and a gay lavender shirt.

His great mop of black curls was uncovered and the olive moon face beneath showed gentle perplexity.

Stuart Booth went forward, calling:

"Hello, Pietro! Come right over here."

The Latin's teeth gleamed in a wide slow smile.

"Ah, Signor Boot'! You send for me, eh? Dey no tell me—joost say, 'Hi! Pietro Pasquale? Come to da studio.' I don't know what ees, but here I am."

Hormell had approached and was staring critically at the Italian.

Before Booth could speak again, he said curtly:

"All right, Tony—let's hear you sing."

The small dark man gazed up with puzzled incomprehension and replied:

"Excuse, pleez; da name she's Pietro, an' I don't know joost what you talk. Maybe you joke, eh?"

"Keep still a minute," Booth said sharply to the director; "give me a chance to explain to him.

Listen, old timer; we're in a fix here; you can help us out and incidentally, make yourself fifty dollars for a couple of hours' work—just singing."

The fellow made a quick little bow and said:

"Sure, sure; she's made me very happy to do somet'eengs for you."

The set across the stage, however, had caught his eye and he started to wander off toward it.

The actor grasped his arm as Hormell let out a snort of exasperation and demanded:

"Well, are we going through with the farce, or is this gentleman just a sightseer?"

"That's what I'm saying," Fiberg agreed.

"He acts like he was doing us a favor. What's the big idea?"

Pietro met the producer's scowl with grave dignity.

"Excuse, pleez," he corrected; "she's only for Signor Boot' I do set."

Fiberg gasped incredulously a moment; then:

"Say, what's the matter from you?" he yelped.

"Nobody's asking you should do anything gratis. Fifty smackers you get for just one song—even if you don't sing very good, maybe!"

Again that broad calm smile spread over the swart features.

"That ees all right, signor. I'm love to seeng, anyhow."

Once more he commenced to stroll away. Stuart Booth cried:

"But, Pietro! It has to be done this afternoon—right now!"

The Italian halted at once, a mildly shocked surprise entering his expression.

"Oh—ni? Excuse, pleez; I'm not understan'."

A savage groan from Hormell.

"Listen, Booth," he bawled; "either you get that spaghetti gobbler warbling in the next two minutes, or I quit. Savvy?"

The actor glared sourly at him and turned again to Pietro, explaining:

"You see, there's an Italian sequence in the picture we're making. Several of us are traveling along a mountain road and we come to a small inn. The proprietor's sitting on the piazza, carrying wood and singing some air from an opera. Now that's what we want you for! Can you do it?"

Pietro laughed—a full and carefree sound with no hint of scorn in it.

"Why, sure!" he exclaimed buoyantly.

"You mean like dees?"

Hank went his head, a breath was taken, and suddenly there poured forth a rich torrent of golden melody as he began an aria from "I Pagliacci."

It rose and swelled and filled the great room with glorious music.

In a moment people from all over the stage had gathered round.

Not a note in all that song was less than perfection.

Long before he had finished, Fiberg and the director were huddled together, whispering excitedly.

Even Stuart Booth was astonished. At last it ended and the little Italian gazed about him, a trifle startled.

Then Hormell and the producer were rushing forward in a dual fever of inspiration.

"Say, that's the finest thing I ever heard—a listen to!" Fiberg chattered.

And the director:

"Marvelous! Where have you been hiding, you old fake, you?"

In a quick aside to Booth, he bawled: "My God, man—why didn't you tell me about this before? He's the greatest find I've ever run across!"

Fiberg, an arm about the singer's shoulders, was talking rapidly:

"Now Mr. Pasquale, here's the way I'm figuring it. You'll want to do a couple of small parts and then we star you. How about a six months' contract with options, at—well, say two hundred and fifty a week?"

The three studio men waited, their eyes upon the Latin's face.

For an instant bewilderment was there; then slowly he looked from one to the other with something very like disbelief.

"Joost a meenute," he said finally; "maybe I'm don understan' again. You want that I come here every day and seeng for da peectures, si?"

They nodded.

Pietro Pasquale made a queer small noise in his throat and stepped back, shaking free of the producer's embrace.

"Excuse, pleez!" He spoke with a stinging firmness. "She's very kind of you—but, no!"

"You—you mean you're refusing the contract?"

"Si, signor."

Palpably he was in dead earnest.

"Listen, pleez: When I am a boy een Milano, always I seeng. Joost for happiness. Den one day somebody she's hear me an' say, 'You seeng for da caroso? I am young fool, so I do set. Five, six year I keep on at las' get een La Scala opera and soon beeve da name een lights. Bravo, bravo! But all da joy she's gone when each night I have to seeng so much, so long. So now I have geeve all dat up an' come here where I can poosh da cart to make enough for Rosita an' da bambinos an' me. Seeng! Signor, I do set for gladness, but she's not enough money een all da world to buy from Pietro a song ever again!"

Nevada Marsh Yields Rich Sodium Sulphate

Sodium sulphate, once a plentiful byproduct of nitric and hydrochloric acid manufacture, has become relatively scarce in this country because of recent changes in the manufacturing processes of those acids, writes F. C. Rich in Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. Just when it began to appear that the United States would have to depend on imports for its sodium sulphate, an isolated desert marsh began to yield this chemical in practically pure form. This strange deposit, where sodium sulphate, or "glaubers salt" can be scooped up by steam shovel is known as Rhodes Marsh, and is located in Mineral county, Nevada.

A few years ago, F. S. Williams, a chemical engineer at one time associated with a company producing sodium sulphate from Carrizo lake, California, came across an old report of Prof. Joseph LeConte, geology professor at the University of California, in which mention was made of an enormous deposit of glaubers salt at Rhodes. In 1928 he was able to interest a group of San Francisco men who spent considerable time prospecting the deposit, surveying the markets, and investigating processes for recovery of the sulphate. The first plant was erected in 1930. With the experience thus gained as a basis, a program of improvement was initiated late in 1932.

Rhodes Marsh is roughly circular in shape. The mineralized section is about 200 acres in area and covered with 6 inches to 2 feet of silt. On the south half of the deposit, a 15-foot layer of glaubers salt is found immediately under the overburden; in places it has been found to be present at a depth of 80 feet.

Mother at Seven

A case of a child born to a seven-year-old girl, reported by Dr. Hilda Keane, of Victoria Zenana hospital, Delhi, is mentioned in the British Medical Journal. An unmarried Mohammedan girl was admitted to hospital on March 18, 1933," says Doctor Keane. Her age, as given by her father, was seven. Her general development was good, and she had fair intelligence. Her height was only 3 feet 11 inches, and her weight only 48 pounds. She still had her milk teeth. A living female child was born weighing 4 pounds 8 ounces. Beyond suffering from fright for the first three days, the mother made a perfect recovery and was able to nurse her child for nine months.

A MOTHER'S LOVE

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IN MY back yard a morning-glory vine
Grows wild, and if I do not weed it out,
It will destroy each pretty rose of mine,
And spill the poppy petals all about.

Just so my love might grow on roots as strong
And choke each pretty flowering thought you hold,
I must take care! A mother's love is wrong
That stifles the young bloom its leaves enfold.

Cattle Guide to Crop Adjustment

Retirement of Land Demands Plans to Use Grain and Forage Yields.

By R. B. Season, Associate Chief, in Beef Cattle Husbandry, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Retirement of some 1,500,000 acres of corn and wheat land from normal production under the AAA programs is likely to be successful only if stock numbers are adjusted to the new levels of grain and forage production.

Cattle constitute a "lock washer" which can be used to hold steady and give permanence to many adjustments which may be made in agricultural practices.

Farmers with cattle will quickly see the advantages to be gained by raising less grain and more forage and pasture, since this new supply of forage can be used effectively in beef production. Consequently, changes made by such farmers in their cropping systems will be relatively permanent. On the other hand, farmers without cattle will find their hay and pasture crops even more difficult to dispose of at remunerative prices than were their former surpluses of corn and wheat.

Cattle contribute further to the success of the government's adjustment programs through the aid which they furnish in maintaining the fertility of high-grade land. If marginal and submarginal land is entirely removed from cultivation, it will be imperative that the land used for the growing of harvested crops be maintained in a high state of fertility. For this purpose, cattle manure has no equal.

Furthermore, beef cattle aid in the elimination of burdensome surpluses through their ability to convert a million bushels of corn into five million pounds of beef. The million bushels of corn in its natural state would supply the total cereal needs of 300,000 people for an entire year, while the 5,000,000 pounds of beef will suffice only for 100,000 persons a year at the present scale of beef consumption.

Small fluctuations in the corn, barley and oat crops, amounting to a few million bushels either way, have but slight effect on the grain market so long as there are sufficient cattle in the country to permit the utilization of the surpluses, or to permit the release of sufficient grain to make good the deficit by the varying number of cattle given a grain feed. Without sufficient cattle to furnish this safety factor, relatively small fluctuations in the grain crops may have a great influence on market prices.

Lesson for August 19

AMOS DENOUNCES SELF-INDULGENCE

(Temperance Lesson).

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken. Amos 5:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When People Are selfish.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Amos' Famous Sermon.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Dangers of Self-Indulgence.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Destruction Through Indulgence.

Our lesson is a temperance lesson and applies to other things than indulgence in intoxicating liquors. Our age is intoxicated with the love of pleasure, pursuit of gain, and various kinds of self-ambition.

I. Israel's Reckless Security (vv. 1-3).

They were blind to the perils that surrounded them. They trusted in the mountains of Samaria for their protection. They regarded their city as impregnable. They seemed to have regarded the utterances of Amos as the dreams of a fanatic. The same blindness are being made in America by those who are depending upon money and armaments instead of righteousness as the national defense.

II. Israel's Extreme Luxury (vv. 4-6).

Periods of prosperity are always characterized by luxury. The luxury of Israel expressed itself in:

1. Extravagant furniture (v. 4). They had beds of ivory—perhaps wood inlaid with ivory. 2. Indolence (v. 4). Many lazily stretched themselves on their couches—lived lives of indolence. Such is the way of many in America today.

3. Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). The implication here is that they had their dainties out of season. They bought what they desired, regardless of what it cost.

4. Adorned their feasts with music (v. 5). They sang idle songs—even invented musical instruments for this purpose. How like the times in which we live! By means of the radio, vulgar and even licentious sentiments are carried to our ears through the noble art of music.

5. They drank wine (v. 6). They were not satisfied with ordinary drinking vessels—they drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking. They were so mastered by the intoxicating cup that their feasts which were adorned with the refinement of music ended in drunken debauchery.

III. Israel's Failure to Grieve for Joseph (v. 6).

Joseph here stands for Ephraim and Manasseh, his two sons. Ephraim became the principal tribe of the northern kingdom, so Joseph is used as a synonym for the nation.

IV. The Inevitable Consequence (vv. 7-11).

1. They shall go into captivity (v. 7). The northern kingdom was the first in sin and therefore first to go into captivity.

2. The calamitous circumstances of the siege of Samaria (vv. 8-11). The city with all its inhabitants was to be delivered up to its enemies.

a. Israel, the first in rank as well as first in numbers and power, went first into captivity.

b. Their revelry to cease (v. 7). There was to be a rude awakening from their drunken carousals.

c. God's judgment upon the city in strange contrast to his love for Jacob (v. 8). Men, women, and children went into captivity at the hands of the Assyrians.

d. The surety of God's commandment (vv. 11). The destruction was to be universal. The rich and the poor, the large and the small were included. God has sworn that his judgments shall fall. He is a God of justice. He is also the God of hosts, the controller of the whole universe, therefore none can escape. Though God sometimes waits long, he does not forget.

V. Israel's Ridiculous Conduct Exposed (vv. 12-14).

1. It was as absurd as plowing upon a rock with oxen. Their hard hearts were as unresponsive to the call of God as rocks are to the plow of the farmer (v. 12).

2. Their boasted power as a nation (v. 13). Outwardly the nation was characterized by great wealth and splendor. This all was to pass away with the stroke of divine judgment.

3. A nation raised up against them (v. 14). God raised up the Assyrian nation to punish Israel. The very fortified cities which they boasted of, Amos tells, would be taken away and used against them.
